A Lovely Drive.—The most beautiful drive in the vic v of New-York is, beyond all question, that on the line of re PANY. This road has a plank and also a gravel track, and tor smoothness of surface, esamess and uniformity of grade leaves nothing to be desired by those who can appreciate the enjoyment of a quiet rural drive, with a light or heavy vehicle, along a read FREE FROM DUST, and e nobining some of the most enchanting scenery to be found anywhere. The spiendid view from the est side of the hill about a mile and a half from Hoboken is unrivaled. On the western slope of the same hill, the prospect, so varied and extensive, yet so different, is not less to be admired; while the track beyond the Hackenssek River, a perfect level of over two miles, is indeed equal to any race-course. Again, in going through the gorge at Shawhank, a scene of quiet loveliness breaks at once upon the sight, formed by the seeluded village of Acquackanenks. At Paterson, with its mignificent "Falls of the Passale," the ride terminates. In passing along and enjoying the beauties of nature, those "creature comforts" so necessary to sustain both man and beast are not found wanting at the various places of entertainment along the line. Those of "Collins & Colema," beyond the third mile post; Winsne, at the Half-Way House, seven miles out; Costner's, on Berty's Hill; Ryerson & Van Orden's in the villege of Acquackanenk; and last, though not least, Rady's, at the Passale Falls, are alike distinguished, as well by the excellence of their refreshments as by the quiet, gentlemanly attention of their hosts.

CAPTAIN MARRYAT'S NOVELS NOW

DERBY & JACKSON,

Captain Marrynt's productions are happy in more sen-tran one; he employs neither the effort nor the prolinity Cooper; his conception of character is so facile and fellent that his personages immediately become our intimate acqual-ance and astonish us by their faithful resemblance to who classes of their ps similarly situated. Captain Marryat's humo-genuine, it flows naturally, and insensibly communicates the reader the gayety the author seems himself animated with [Westminster Review

"How many have thanked God for the hour that first made them acquainted with the writings of Hennah More. She del perhaps as much real good in her generation as any woman that ever held the pen. It would be idle for us to dwell here on works so well known. They have established her name as a great anoral writer, possessing a masterly command over the resources of our language, and devoting a keen wit and a lively fancy to the best and noblect of purposes.

[Quarterly Review.]

"Colebs in Search of a Wife, I am really delighted with. I have been kept up night after night reading it after supper. I hope, too, that it will do as much good as such a composition, from its very nature, can do. It will, I trust, draw on to other and more serious studies."—[Wilberforce.
